DRAFT Solar Permitting and Information Resource Landing Page Template
Solar Best Management Practice #PR 1-C: Provide a Central Information Source
For Consideration by the Local Governments of the Tampa Bay Region
October 2014

Tampa Bay Regional Planning Council has developed a webpage template containing links to sample solar permitting documents and other solar information resources. The sample webpage template is not designed to be a central solar permitting and information resource for the Tampa Bay region. Rather, the template is designed to provide guidance for the region's local governments that are developing a solar permitting and information resource landing page that will serve as a central information source as described in Solar Ready II's list of solar best management practices (#PR 1-C).

In this sample webpage template, the information and links are laid out using the TBRPC's website design standards, so the page's overall design, left-side and top-level navigation, headers, footers, etc. would fit seamlessly within TBRPC's overall website architecture. This is done to mimic the way a local government would make the design of its solar permitting and information resource landing page match the overall design of their jurisdiction's website.

Of course, the template provided is an example solar landing page, and local governments may wish to include more or less information about solar permitting and other solar information resources as appropriate.
